ForumAlpinum is a scientific conference organised by ISCAR aiming to promote international research cooperation on topics of relevance across the entire Alpine Arc. ForumAlpinum has also been designed as an interface between the scientific community and policy, providing opportunities for science-policy dialogue.

The Alps: Call for posters for students, young and early-career researchers (under 35 years)

ForumAlpinum 2026 titled »Alpine communities and territories in a time of glacier loss and climate change« will focus on the consequences of deglaciation in Alpine regions (and beyond), with particular attention to environmental, cultural and economic impacts. The progressive retreat of glaciers, accelerated by climate change, is profoundly modifying the landscape, water resources, biodiversity and traditional activities of mountain communities. In some cases, this even includes the territorial structure created by humans over time through the construction of roads, settlements and pastures. ForumAlpinum 2026 aims to identify emerging challenges, land-use conflicts and the impact of climate change, as well as new forms of resilience, regional development, territorial planning and social innovation. These are intended to address the aforementioned challenges and preserve the identity and sustainability of these territories for future generations. This ForumAlpinum will take a closer look and will discuss different perspectives that go beyond the current situation.

This year, we would particularly like to invite university students, young and early-career researchers (under 35 years) from various scientific disciplines to present posters with their research findings relating and relevant to the Alps. Poster topics may relate to the main conference theme, but contributions on other related alpine topics are very welcome as well.

Poster presentations are particularly suitable to present work in progress and foster discussions and exchange. In addition, you will have an opportunity to discuss your findings with your counterparts and to establish contacts with researchers from other European countries on topics related to the Alps.

Poster Submission & deadline

Please provide your poster abstract and your contact information by February 27, 2026, using the web form: <https://eu.research.net/r/forumalpinum-2026-posters> .

We will inform you about the acceptance of your poster by March 23, 2026, and provide further information on the poster design and technical issues. A 3-minute public presentation of the poster is required from each author or co-author. Posters must be written in English and will be exhibited during the conference. Abstracts of the posters will be published in the conference proceedings. Attending as presenter is free of charge.
